

Workshop on „Romanticism and Periodization“ with Renowned International Experts

The Department of Anglophone Literatures and Cultures, Faculty of Arts, Charles University is pleased to invite you to the workshop „Romanticism and Periodization“ on Wednesday 15 May 2019, 15:00-17:30, Room 111, 1st floor.

Programme:

Professor David Duff (Queen Mary University of London)
“Introduction: Phases of British Romanticism”

Professor Nicholas Halmi (University of Oxford)
“Period and Epoch-making Event: Romanticism and the French Revolution”

Professor Fiona Stafford (University of Oxford)
“Romanticism and the ‘Four Nations’: Not Quite in Time”

Professor Martin Procházka (Charles University, Prague)
“Periodization as a Problem: The Case of American Romanticism”

Dr Laurent Folliot (Sorbonne Université, Paris)
“Secularization of Time: Complications in Periodizing Romanticism”

All welcome!

The workshop is supported by the European Regional Development Fund Project “Creativity and Adaptability as Conditions of the Success of Europe in an Interrelated World” (No. CZ.02.1.01/0.0/0.0/16_019/0000734).