Editorial ............................................................................................................. 7

Pavel Šturm: The birth of an institute: A centennial Jubilee of Prague’s Institute of Phonetics ................................................................. 9

Jan Michalsky and Oliver Niebuhr: Myth busted? Challenging what we think we know about charismatic speech ........................................ 27

Volker Dellwo, Elisa Pellegrino, Lei He, Thayabaran Kathiresan: The dynamics of indexical information in speech: Can recognizability be controlled by the speaker? .............................................................. 57

Nikola Paillereau and Kateřina Chládková: Spectral and temporal characteristics of Czech vowels in spontaneous speech .................. 77

Eliška Churaňová: The relations between phonotactics and speech rhythm in Czech ............................................................... 97

Radek Skarnitzl and Jana Rumlová: Phonetic aspects of strongly-accented Czech speakers of English ...................................................... 109

Pavel Šturm and Lea Tylečková: Dialectal differences in voicing assimilation patterns: The case of Moravian Czech English .................. 129

Jan Volín: The size of prosodic phrases in native and foreign-accented read-out monologues ............................................................. 145

Maral Asiaee, Mandana Nourbakhsh, Saeed Rahandaz: The electropalatographic study of the coarticulatory effect of vowels on coronal stops in Persian .................................................................................................................. 159