

linguist[ic]s PRAGUE

We are happy to announce that the 4th edition of the Linguistics Prague conference will be held from September 30 to October 2 2022

The aim of the conference is to bring together graduate students and early career researchers whose research addresses any topics relevant to linguistics and is grounded in empirical methods. Papers using cognitive linguistic, usage-based framework are especially welcome.

We invite oral and poster presentations of original data oriented research concerned with different aspects of language structure and use, as well as discussions of relevant methodological issues.

Abstract submission deadline: April 15 2022
