ENGLISH LANGUAGE AND LINGUISTICS

form and type of study: full-time, master's (follow-up graduate) programme

number of applicants admitted in the previous academic year: 0

number of applicants admitted in the previous academic year: 8

anticipated number of applicants to be admitted: 3

permitted combinations: single-curriculum or double-curriculum study; may be combined with any other master's programme where double-curriculum study with this programme is permissible

admission without entrance examination: not permissible

The language of instruction is English. This is a fee-paying programme; the annual fee is CZK 110 000.

entrance examination: two-rounds (written and oral) entrance examination description:

1st round – written test (max. 50 points; duration: 100 minutes)

1. linguistic analysis of an English text

The first round focuses on a linguistic analysis of an English text: morphological description of word classes, syntactic analysis of simple and multiple sentences, basic principles of word-formation and lexical semantics, general knowledge of the history of the English language, knowledge of the functional description of the grammatical system and the relevant grammatical categories.

2nd round – oral examination (interview, max. 50 points)

1. motivation for studying English language and linguistics (max. 15 points)
2. the English grammar system and language skills (max. 35 points)

The second round aims:

- to assess the applicant's motivation for studying the English language and linguistics (the applicant is expected to demonstrate a keen interest in the English language and linguistics and a general idea of employment possibilities after graduation),

Criteria for assessing motivation and interest in the field:

- convincing motivation – the motivation is clearly and specifically articulated and sufficiently defended, it is relevant to the English Language and Linguistic programme: 15-11 points

- partially convincing motivation – the motivation is formulated and defended relatively specifically, it is quite relevant to the English Language and Linguistic programme: 10-6 points

- unconvincing motivation - the motivation is vaguely explained and insufficiently defended, it is not very relevant to the English Language and Linguistic programme: 5-0 points

- to assess the applicant's knowledge of the English grammatical system and relevant linguistic terminology (which is expected to correspond to that following completion of a BA degree in English linguistics at a major Czech university) and language skills (including an appropriate command of academic English, both written and spoken).

other requirements: none (no certificates of English proficiency are required)

additional information:

information on graduate prospects:

Logic is a theoretical programme which relies on mathematical methods and which can be applied in mathematics, computation and specific fields of philosophy. Logic has also connections to linguistics and law theory. In general, graduates can be employed in all areas which deal with formal and quantitative methods and rely on critical analysis of problems, often in formalized environments (software or legal companies, government or educational institutions). Graduates can continue in a doctoral programme (PhD) in logic.
