

UNIVERSITY
CONSORTIUM

CALL FOR PARTICIPANTS: UNIVERSITY CONSORTIUM TRAINING MODULE

If you're interested in relations among Russia, Europe, and the United States in this time of conflict and crisis:

Here's your chance to analyze Russia's war on Ukraine - and other pressing issues in Russia-West relations - together with your peers, leading experts, and world-class scholars from the US, Europe, and Russia (in exile).

THE TRAINING MODULE:

- Consists of 5-days of intensive training
- Features lectures, seminars, workshops led by internationally renowned scholars and experts from across the Euro-Atlantic area
- Brings together a group of international students (including expat and exiled Russian students) from universities in the US and Europe to learn from each other and discuss together the acute crisis between their countries and Russia and how to manage the challenges ahead
- Promotes deeper knowledge and better comprehension of Russia's war on Ukraine, the Russia-West crisis, and implications for international relations more broadly
- Provides rare networking opportunities with your peers from other countries
- Serves as a gateway to the community of UC Fellows which includes more events, publishing opportunities, grant schemes, professional contacts, and more.

There are two possible sets of dates: 7-11 March 2023 or 14-18 March 2024. Both modules take place in Sofia, Bulgaria. All costs are covered for our participants, thanks to the generosity of our funder, Carnegie Corporation of New York.

Contact for details on how to apply.

The application period closes on

Support for this initiative was provided by a grant from Carnegie Corporation of New York

